10. Fair Value Estimation

Inputs are used in applying the various valuation techniques and broadly refer to the assumptions that market participants use to make valuation decisions, including assumptions about risk. Inputs may include price information, volatility statistics, specific and broad credit data, liquidity statistics and other factors. A financial instrument's level within the fair value hierarchy is based on the lowest level of any input that is significant to the fair value measurement (lowest being level 3).

Observable inputs are those that market participants would use in pricing the asset or liability based on market data obtained from sources independent of the Company. Unobservable inputs reflect Company management's assumptions, made in good faith, about the inputs market participants would use in pricing the asset or liability developed based on the best information available in the circumstances. The determination of what constitutes "observable" requires significant judgment by Company management. Company management considers observable data to be that market data which is readily available, regularly distributed or updated, reliable and verifiable, not proprietary, and provided by independent sources that are actively involved in the relevant market.

The categorisation of a financial instrument within the hierarchy is based upon the pricing transparency of the instrument and does not necessarily correspond to Company management's perceived risk of that instrument.

Fair value is a market-based measure considered from the perspective of a market participant rather than an entity-specific measure. Therefore, even when market assumptions are not readily available, Company management's own assumptions are set to reflect those that market participants would use in pricing the asset or liability at the measurement date. Company management uses prices and inputs that are current as of the measurement date, including periods of market dislocation. In periods of market dislocation, the observability of prices and inputs may be reduced for many securities. This condition could cause a security to be reclassified to a lower level within the fair value hierarchy.

10. Fair Value Estimation (continued)

The three levels of inputs are defined as follows:

Level 1 - The unadjusted quoted price in active markets for identical assets or liabilities that the entity can access at the measurement date;

Level 2 - Inputs other than quoted prices included within level 1 that are observable (i.e. developed using market data) for the asset or liability, either directly or indirectly; and

Level 3 - Inputs that are unobservable (i.e. for which market data is unavailable) for the asset or liability.

Valuation Techniques

When fair values of listed equities as well as publicly traded derivatives at the reporting date are based on quoted market prices or binding dealer price quotations, without any deduction for transaction costs, the instruments are included within level 1 of the hierarchy.

13. Segregated Liability

The Company is an open-ended umbrella investment company with segregated liability between Sub-Funds. As a result, as a matter of Irish law, any liability attributable to a particular Sub-Fund may only be discharged out of the assets of that Sub-Fund and the assets of other Sub-Funds may not be used to satisfy the liability of that Sub-Fund.

In addition, any contract entered into by the Company will by operation of law include an implied term to the effect that the counterparty to the contract may not have any recourse to assets of any of the Sub-Funds other than the Sub-Fund in respect of which the contract was entered into.

These provisions are binding both on creditors and in any insolvency but do not prevent the application of any enactment or rule of law which would require the application of the assets of one Sub-Fund to discharge some, or all liabilities of another Sub-Fund on the grounds of fraud or misrepresentation. In addition, whilst these provisions are binding in an Irish court which would be the primary venue for an action to enforce a debt against the Company, these provisions have not been tested in other jurisdictions, and there remains a possibility that a creditor might seek to attach or seize assets of one Sub-Fund in satisfaction of an obligation owed in relation to another Sub-Fund in a jurisdiction which would not recognise the principle of segregation of liability between Sub-Funds.

James Hambro Harrier Adventurous Fund

INVESTMENT MANAGER'S REPORT for the financial period ended 30 June 2023

The James Hambro Harrier Adventurous Fund returned +3.2% in the six months to 30 June 2023.

The start of the year was punctuated by fears around economic growth, as 77% of Wall Street economists incorrectly predicted a recession in the first three months of the year. This lasted barely a week before investors were given hope that a goldilocks scenario of immaculate disinflation and gently slowing growth would allow interest rates to fall without the inconvenience of a recession. Markets rallied with previously weaker sectors like unprofitable technology and cyclical businesses leading the way.

The Federal Reserve quickly challenged this hope in February as they confirmed that a volte face on interest rate policy was off the table. A buoyant jobs market, resilient spending by consumers and underlying price pressures from wages and services meant that more tightening was likely to be needed with rates remaining at their highs for the rest of the year. A position maintained throughout the half as economic resilience led to interest rates and expectations moving steadily higher.

Then came the failure of Silicon Valley Bank (SVB), a name unknown to most outside of venture capital and banking circles, but still the second biggest banking failure in US history and the largest since the dark days of 2008. Fears of contagion spread through the US regional banking sector and beyond as Credit Suisse became caught up in the maelstrom. Decisive action by the US authorities in turning on the liquidity taps yet again and guaranteeing depositors was designed to soothe market paranoia that these events might herald a repeat of the financial crisis.

This action has thus far proven effective as the worry that SVB might be the first of many dominoes to fall has subsided even as $600 billion of deposits left US banks for other havens, principally money market funds. The subsequent consolidation of First Republic Bank into JPMorgan, a core holding within the portfolio, caused barely a ripple and the feared contagion of perceived vulnerabilities in the commercial real estate market have failed to materialise.

Investors have struggled to predict the future path of growth and with it interest rates in the face of conflicting data. The global economy's resilience continues to confound expectations. Despite the second fastest interest-rate tightening cycle in the past 50 years, inflation and economic growth have slowed only modestly. With wages rising, unemployment remaining low and pandemic-disrupted supply chains healing the data is showing that consumers are continuing to spend. This conflicts with many leading indicators, particularly those associated with manufacturing, that point decisively towards a contraction ahead.

The residual shockwaves of the pandemic continue to reverberate, whilst the avoidance of the expected energy Armageddon has provided a boost to wallets and sentiment. The jury is still to deliver a verdict on whether a recession can be avoided or simply postponed. What seems certain is that central banks want to see clear trends towards lower inflation and softening wage inflation before deciding to alter the course of interest rate policy. For now, this more robust economic picture has supported corporate performance and resulted in an expectation that interest rates will have to remain higher for longer.

Adding to this more favourable economic backdrop, the emergence of generative artificial intelligence (AI) and the dawn of a potential new technology cycle has propelled share prices of US technology and semiconductor companies to spectacular effect. The seven largest companies - Apple, Microsoft, Amazon, Alphabet, Meta, Nvidia and Tesla - were alone responsible for 80% of the return of the S&P 500 in the first half of this year and the technology-focused Nasdaq index had a better first half of the year than at any time in the last forty years.

The surprisingly benign environment this year is primarily due to two factors, both which will likely prove temporary. Firstly, the global (and particularly US) economy has been buoyed by the pandemic era build-up of savings and pent-up demand. This has insulated consumers from the impact of higher prices to date, but as these reserves are depleted the economy will likely weaken. Alongside this, the true impact of higher rates has yet to be fully seen in the real economy given the limited level of debt refinancing that has taken place. Over the coming year we expect this to change as consumers and corporates have to deal with a cost of debt that many have never experienced before.

James Hambro Harrier Adventurous Fund

INVESTMENT MANAGER'S REPORT (continued) for the financial period ended 30 June 2023

Our central case remains that central bank policy will ultimately be effective in dampening inflation, with the slowdown that is already visible in the manufacturing economy likely to broaden. This will impact upon corporate earnings and ultimately reduce inflationary pressures. Some recent disappointing updates from companies focused on the lower-income US consumer suggest that the impact of reduced savings and tighter policy may finally be beginning to bite.

We spent much of last year building more resilience into portfolios given our concerns that the rapid tightening of financial conditions would ultimately lead to recessionary conditions and that the post COVID environment would lead to a different economic and policy mix. Government policy intervention, the energy transition and a process of reshoring driven by strategic security and reduced global co-operations are likely to lead to a more variable economic environment and more volatility in inflation, interest rates and growth. Not necessarily a bad environment but one which may lead to a broader opportunity set both by sector and geography.

Given portfolio changes made last year, the market environment and outlook, we made limited changes to portfolios in the first half. We retain an exposure to diversifying assets, including cash, hedge funds and gold to provide balance alongside our equity holdings which will prove sensitive to any recession and with it a contraction in earnings.

With bond yields having moved higher and the potential risk of the US debt ceiling negotiations cleared, we continued along the path set out at the end of last summer, to bring our overall weight in this defensive asset class back to a neutral position for the first time in over a decade. This was achieved with a further addition to US Treasuries hedged back into our base currency of sterling.
